interest.

Oestreich said the difficulty is that you cannot remove money from a CD that is still active without incurring a steep penalty. She, Childress and the board members discussed whether this would be fees associated with the withdrawal or potentially the loss of the interest on the investment.

Oestreich said she wanted to make sure there was still enough money readily available in the checking account to provide that cushion so the organization was prepared if funding changes on the Nutrition side should occur.

Renee Kipp, Executive Director of the Burleigh County Council on Aging, who was present at the meeting, pointed out that funding is currently very volatile with cuts to many federal programs under the current administration.

The board did not take any official action on creating new CDs during their meeting in Washburn last week, but they agreed to have Board Member David Kapanke visit with local financial advisors that he knew about what options there were for CDs and what the interest rates would be. He will present this information and the board can then act on whether to put any money into CDs (and if so, how much) during the next Commission on Aging Board meeting, which is currently scheduled for July 16, in Hazen.

During the April 16 meeting, the board elected a new chairperson, Wanda Sutheimer from Zap, to replace outgoing board chairperson Dwight Mack. Vice Chairperson George Reichenberg from Hazen presided at the April meeting.

The board also appointed three members and an alternate for the advisory board. Verda Krizan of Beulah, Dennis Ness of Garrison and Claudia Volk of Wilton were approved to the advisory board, with Reichenberg selected as the alternate.

Oestreich discussed challenges with staff shortages, including finding a temporary meal transporter for Garrison. She said the regular Garrison transporter is currently out for surgery and, with no one else available, a person from Hazen was currently going up to Garrison to do the meal transporting if Oestreich herself was not available. A couple of people from the Garrison area who attended the meeting said they would visit with contacts they had to see if they could find a driver.

Other staffing concerns were discussed regarding the Wilton location temporarily cooking and delivering and finding a new transporter for Golden Valley, Zap and Stanton in the near future, as the current transporter is transferring out, and the need for a new cook at the Hazen location.

David Kapanke read the bylaws of the Mercer & McLean Counties Commission on Aging, both to refresh the information for existing board members and to educate newer members about these bylaws.

In other business, the Mercer & McLean Counties Commission on Aging: heard and approved the minutes of the Jan. 15, 2025 quarterly meeting, approved having Dan Walsvik as a new bank signatory for Hazen, discussed the most recent audit (for the 2023 financial year), performed by Hoerner Rodakowski out of Dickinson, with annual audits for the organization and the audit of 2024 finances currently underway, discussed the organization's newsletter and ways to advertise Meals on Wheels and senior citizens services to the public, and discussed the possibility of getting a deep freezer in the Butte location that could be utilized once a week provided that the freezer was secured and there was a person willing to oversee its use.
